

Amia Srinivasan Visit - Preliminary Schedule

We are looking forward to your visit to Deep Springs!

What follows here is a preliminary schedule, outlining your formal responsibilities while visiting. We welcome other engagement over the course of the week at your discretion. Deep Springs students have multiple responsibilities, and their free time is often limited by the demands of their coursework, labor responsibilities, and self-governance. With that in mind we've set aside specific time-slots which we ask you to reserve to interact with them. The primary categories of engagement are listed below, followed by a detailed, daily schedule. Your partner, Sophie, is, of course, more than welcome to engage with the community at whatever level she finds appropriate.

Meals: We welcome participation in our communal meals. (You may also pick food up 'to go' style). Food is served family-style, with vegetarian and vegan options. Let us know about any particular food allergy or concern and we will try to accommodate it. During the week, meals are served three times per day: breakfast at 7:30am, Lunch at noon, and dinner at 6:00pm. On Saturday no breakfast is served.

Conversation/Walks: On most days we'll allow individual or small groups of students to reserve a time to speak with you. Deep Springs often prefer to do this on a walk, though this is up to you. We've allowed 30-40 minutes for each of these.

Small Group Discussions: Twice we've scheduled you for small-group discussions of The Right to Sex. Students attending these meeting will have read the book and will come with questions for you. No formal presentation from you is necessary.

PubSpeak: On Tuesday night, students hold a public speaking meeting (one of two required courses for all DS students). This hour-long program feature four or five short talks from Deep Springs students. While this is an optional program for you, we encourage you to attend (it's open to all community members).

Formal Presentations: Three times during the week we ask you to give a more formal presentation. We leave the topic of the first address (Monday) up to you, but encourage you to speak about your current research. Plan on 30-40 minutes, with the remainder of the hour left over for questions and discussion. For your second address (Thursday), the students request a presentation on your research methods, the use and value of the philosophical canon. Again, prepare roughly 30-40 minutes of remarks with the expectation of questions and discussion afterward. For the final presentation (Saturday), the students request a presentation and discussion of free speech on campus. We'd like to leave this a bit more open-ended, with some introductory and framing remarks from you and then open community discussion.
